

We are the light

On the day of “festival of lights” we see people decorating their houses and surroundings with colourful light. “Victory over darkness” is the story behind the epic. Light signifies God, faith, righteousness, goodness, peace, joy, celebration whereas darkness signifies evil, sadness, defeat, mystery, fear, destruction, captivity. No one likes darkness. We often have experienced that post-midnight the same drawing room without light, brings fear whereas, on bright sunny day, you move around with courage. And when dawn sets in, it makes you happy and gives hope.

The illumination changes the state of mind. In John 8:12 Jesus tells HIS people that

John 08:12

I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me will never walk in darkness, but will have the light of life.

It's easy to light up the house outside but what matters more is, how illuminated you are from inside? There is no point in illuminating, the outside world, when you are suffering from darkness inside. The actual glow is, when you yourself, is a light for others.
